The bill making appropriations to support the Military Academy has passed.

The amendments of the Military Committee bill, defining the pay and emoluments of army officers, was also adopted.

Foreign News.

Mr. Massey, Member of Parliament, has delivered a speech to his constituents [illegible] that the European powers should interfere between North and South, by recognizing the Southern Confederacy and breaking the blockade, which attracted some attention. The London Times in an editorial upon it, says: "Let France interfere if she likes; England's true policy is to suffer a little longer and let events work themselves out. It will not be long. It may indeed be doubtful whether our interference would not rather retard than hasten the opening of the ports. Let us then pursue an honest policy by standing quietly aloof." The Manchester Guardian argues in the same strain.

The Morning Post says matters in America are evidently approaching a situation in which the de facto Government of the South may claim consideration in Europe. Other journals say that if, in spite of remonstrances against it, other ports are served like Charleston, England and France will have nothing left but to interfere.

The Liverpool Post emphatically declares that the civil war must be stopped by mediation, if possible, by force if necessary.

It is reported that the initiative steps in proclaiming the blockade ineffectual will be taken by France.

The London Times continues its denunciation against the stone blockade of Charleston.

QUEENSTOWN, Jan. 23d.—The question of European intervention in the civil war of America is being canvassed in a much more friendly spirit.

The Battle at Somerset, Ky., and Great Federal Victory.

The battle at Somerset, Ky., occurred Sunday evening, January 19th. The rebels were repulsed and hotly pursued by General Thomas to their encampment at Mills' Springs, twenty-six miles from Thomas' position, where they crossed the Cumberland. Our forces followed up close to the enemy's intrenchments on the north bank of the river, and laid in front of them all night, expecting to storm them in the morning, but in the night the enemy managed to go across the river in barges and boats. They left everything behind, including artillery, ammunition, horses, tents, Quartermaster's commissary, and medical. The Federal troops took possession of the enemy's intrenchments early Monday morning. On the battle field, after the rebels fled, two hundred dead and wounded were picked up, and among them General Zollicoffer and Bailie Peyton, Jr.—General Zollicoffer was found mortally wounded, in a wagon. Our loss is not definitely known, though considerable. The Tenth Indiana had seventy killed and wounded. The entire rebel loss was two hundred and seventy-five killed. Kentucky and Cumberland Gap is now open for our troops to march into East Tennessee. The Federal army in Southeastern Kentucky have met with signal success, which event has created joy throughout this country. We can now feel as if the war were being waged in earnest.

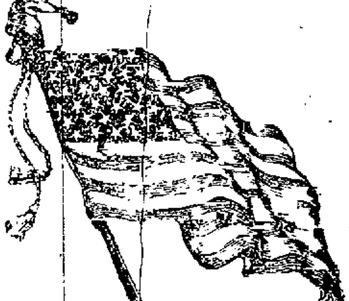
Further particulars of the victory, at Somerset so far as learned are as follows: General Thomas has been for some weeks in southeastern Kentucky with his division, composed of about 8,000 men. Of this force Gen. Schoeff's brigade was thirty miles from Gen. Thomas' headquarters; Col. Morrison's Indiana brigade was twenty miles distant. But learning from a messenger that Zollicoffer contemplated an attack, Morrison marched all the distance Saturday night through rain and sleet, and arrived at Thomas' headquarters three hours before the battle commenced. His men, though tired and hungry, plunged into battle and fought like tigers. General Schoeff's brigade did not arrive until after the enemy had fled. Among the regiments most actively engaged in the fight were the Ninth and Tenth Indiana, Ninth Ohio, Second Minnesota, Fourth and Tenth Kentucky and Eighteenth Regulars. The battle raged with great energy for nearly three hours, when Zollicoffer and Peyton being killed, and our artillery pouring such volleys of death into their ranks, the enemy fled in great confusion. Before the General fell the enemy fought desperately, as the number killed in our ranks will testify. Gen. Thomas continued to pursue until night set in. Our forces followed the rebels who ran before them in the wildest confusion like a flock of frightened sheep, close up to their intrenchments on the north bank of the river. In front of these they laid all night expecting to storm them in the morning; but with the aid of boats and barges, the enemy managed to get across the river before daylight. They left behind them all their artillery, ammunition, horses, tents, and eighty wagon loads Quartermaster's, Commissary and medical stores, which fell into our hands. Our troops had possession of their intrenchments early Monday morning. After reaching the opposite side of the river, the rebels dispersed in all directions.

So far as ascertained the rebel loss is 350 killed and wounded; our loss 150 killed and wounded. Zollicoffer's force was 10,000.

The yacht Templar went ashore in Fool Bay, Puget Sound, on the night of the 23d, a wreck.

The Daily Oregonian.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.



Nothing but the Old Flag ... Red, White and Blue. [illegible]

THURSDAY MORNING, FEB. 13, 1862.

The News.

Our columns are filled with Eastern news brought by the Cortes. It is of a very satisfactory character. The movements of the Union forces, in every direction, seem to be successful. The destruction of Zollicoffer's army and the opening of East Tennessee to the Unionists, is a most gratifying event. The great plan of the campaign is now being carried into effect.

We are glad to see that men, who in the hour of their country's trial, have been engaged in swindling the Government, are likely to be exposed and punished. We like the proposition in Congress, to provide by law for hanging swindlers.

We shall soon hear of great events on the Atlantic coast of the rebel States, in the Gulf States, and on the waters of the Mississippi.

Our relations with European States seem to be unchanged. The presses of Europe in the employ of Secession, are doing what they can to encourage a recognition of the Confederacy. We are not pleased with the policy of some of these powers. "A book of remembrance is written."

News from Mexico, via Acapulco, shows that the conquest of Mexico by the Spaniards is not likely to be accomplished easily. They met with a severe defeat at the National Bridge. We have taught these Mexicans how to fight, and they have proved apt scholars.

Items.

The Breckinridgers have had a meeting at Corvallis. The Knights sat with closed doors. They have called a Convention to be held a week after the Union Convention; at which they will determine whether to bring out a ticket or to go into a campaign under the guerilla system.

That sterling democratic paper the Boston Post, says that appointment of Stark as Senator was an insult to every Union man on this coast.

Senator Nesmith writes that he shall endeavor to procure appropriations for military defences at the mouth of the Columbia river and on the Umpqua.

The ship Coquimbo, from San Francisco, went on shore on Smith's Island, in Puget Sound, on the 22d, and became a total wreck. The crew escaped to Port Townsend.

The Emily Harris, from Westminster, arrived at Victoria, on the 26th, with $80,000 in gold dust.

MEXICO.—A courier had arrived at Acapulco by way of the city of Mexico, from Vera Cruz, bringing intelligence of the defeat of the Spanish army in a severe battle at the National Bridge, near Vera Cruz. The battle lasted five hours. The Mexican forces were commanded by General Uraga.

A gentleman arrived by the Golden Age, informs us that the Mexican authorities had dismantled the fort at Acapulco, burying the larger guns and planting the smaller ones on the hills in the rear of the town. No provisions will be allowed to be brought into the city when the combined fleets shall arrive. This is about the first of military operations on the Western coast in connection with the tripartite invasion.

R Holmes and J Clinton to keep a ferry on Snake river

John Ommhaller to keep a ferry on the main Clearwater

To amend an act incorporating the Oregon Steam Navigation Company

To provide for the payment of the Government Tax.

It will surprise many that the two houses rejected the following resolutions, offered in the House by Mr Griswold

Resolved, That all sectional divisions can [illegible] be healed in the Union [illegible] and that all pretexts for a dissolution of the Union are unsound and unwarrantable

Resolved, That the alacrity with which the masses of the people rush to the rescue of the Union declares them worthy of their lineage and birthright and makes us them at distant limb of the Union forever their debtor

Resolved, That [illegible] incorporated in our institutions, and our institutions with the Union that the dissolution of the one would seriously endanger the permanence of the other

Resolved, That Washington Territory true to herself and true to the Government which protects her will not be found wanting in devotion to the Union or fidelity to the Laws and Constitution or in the respect for and support of Mr Lincoln's administration so far as it is engaged in maintaining the one and supporting the other

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to our Delegate in Congress Wm H Wallace

The patriotism of men may well be doubted who voted against these resolutions

LADD, WEBSTER & CO.'S
FAMILY
SEWING MACHINES
ARE UNEQUALLED BY ANY FOR BEAUTY AND SIMPLICITY OF CONSTRUCTION
AND Efficiency in Working.

A GOOD SEWING MACHINE

SHOULD BE WELL MADE, simple in its construction, and easily kept in order; should make A TIGHT LOCK-STITCH, alike on both sides of the material, and should sew any and all materials that can be sewed.

It should be able to use cotton, thread, or silk, directly from the spool, and to sew from coarse to fine, and from thick to thin, with rapidity, and without changing the tension. It should also be able to make the tension greater or less on both the under and upper threads, and with uniformity; and should have a straight needle; curved ones being liable to break.

The needle should have perpendicular motion—this is absolutely necessary for heavy work.

It should be able to bind with a binder, hem with a hemmer; should stitch, fell, run and gather; and always ready to work.

It should be capable of using the same size thread on both sides of the work, and of using different colored thread or silk, above or below, to correspond with any two colors of cloth to be united.

It should be able to make a long or short stitch, and to fasten off the seam, and commence sewing tightly at the first stitch, and to run easily, and make but little noise.

It should have a wheel feed; no others are in constant contact with the work.

It should not be liable to get out of order; neither should it require a screw driver or wrench to set the needle.

It should not be liable to oil the operator's dress.

It should not form a ridge on the under side, nor ravel.

The undersigned are General Agents for the general supervision of these unrivalled machines for Pacific States and Western Coast of Mexico.
